Division Profile

The Midwest Division was established in 1957 when Vulcan Materials Company merged with Consumers Company, a division of Union Chemical and Materials Corporation. Since that time, the Midwest Division has expanded and now operates facilities in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan. We currently operate over 35 aggregates, concrete recycling and agricultural lime facilities throughout the four-state area. To locate or learn more about a facility near you, use our Facility Finder.

The Midwest Division takes pride in producing high quality materials and providing our customers with excellent customer service. Through several innovative programs, we have established quality certifications in the states where we operate to ensure our industry produces consistent products. In addition, we actively participate in our neighboring communities by supporting local schools, providing student scholarships, and familiarizing our neighbors with our company and industry by inviting them into our quarries for tours.

We also take extra care to ensure that all of our facilities are maintained to the highest environmental standards. We participate in reclamation programs which transform former quarries into greenspaces, stocked lakes and wildlife habitats. Several Midwest Division facilities have been recognized for environmental stewardship, beautification and beneficial land use.

We operate our facilities in a socially responsible manner. Visit our Social Responsibility page to learn more about our commitment to the environment, our employees, and the communities we serve. Additionally, Vulcan Materials Company Foundation supports many public and charitable projects such as working with schools, supporting environmental stewardship and encouraging employee involvement in the communities where we have operations.
